Mazzei ousted from state Senate

Sen. Frank Mazzei after the vote

HARRISBURG (UPI) — The Pennsylvania Senate ended six months of painful delay Monday with an unanimous vote to expel Sen. Frank Mazzei, who was convicted of extorting $20,000 from a Pittsburgh firm that wanted to lease office space to the state.

It was the first time in the Senate's history that a member has been expelled. None of the senators defended the Allegheny County Democrat, who became a powerful figure as head of the Transportation Committee. The vote was 47-0.

The vote came at exactly 5 p.m., after about an hour's debate over alleged threats against the families of seven Republican senators who sponsored a resolution to expel Mazzei, whose office will be filled in a special election later this year.

Democrats questioned the Republicans about the alleged threats from Joseph Scalise, identified by the Crime Commission as an organized crime leader. None of the senators was personally threatened. They heard of the threat from Sen. T. Newell Wood, R-Luzerne, who would not answer questions.

"The issue before us today is not whether the seven of us were threatened," said Sen. John Stauffer, R-Chester. "The real issue is our integrity...Let's face up to the issue and get it over with."

Sens. Thomas Nolan, D-Allegheny, and Herbert Arlene, D-Philadelphia, were not present for the vote. Nolan is in a Harrisburg Hospital under observation for a possible heart condition. Arlene was absent because his wife died earlier this week.

Mazzei, 62, listened to the Senate decide his fate in his office. He would not comment when asked if he would appeal the action. He was asked what he thought his status was.

"I'm put out until such time as decisions are made," he said. "I have no right to be here until such time as my attorney act." Appeals could be filed in Commonwealth Court, or in a federal appeals court, where he is challenging his extortion conviction.

Mazzei was sentenced to five years in federal prison last April 11 after the conviction on charges he extorted $20,000 from a Pittsburgh firm that wanted to lease office space to the state. He admitted during the trial he took the money, but said it went into a special Senate election campaign fund.

He sent a letter to Lt. Gov. Ernest Kline, president of the Senate, earlier Monday claiming the vote on the resolution to expel him violated his Constitutional rights. He said he would fight the Senate vote in the courts.

"In my view the present resolution asks the Senate to take this drastic action in a manner and on grounds that are not within the letter and spirit of the Constitution," Mazzei's letter said.

"...I must remember that it is my rights that are affected, not to mention the rights of thousands who voted for me and whose continued support has been made known to me."

The decision brought an end to a long delay, during which the Senate was widely criticized for refusing to force Mazzei from office. The Mazzei issue also held up important legislation that was blocked when the chamber took a lengthy recess to avoid a vote on expulsion.

"I have no desire to prolong this difficult debate," said Minority Leader Sen. Richard Frame, R-Venango.

"I sense that this Senate is about to live up to its Constitutional responsibility. I understand there is virtual unanimity that points clearly to the removal of the senator involved."

The Senate vote took less than five minutes, but it brought an end to a political career that started more than 30 years ago, when Mazzei was a Democratic ward leader in Pittsburgh.

He was a faithful party worker for years and served as paymaster in the Allegheny County Treasurer's office from 1955 to 1967. In 1967, he was elected to the Senate.

Ford, Sadat gain ground toward peace

Mideast deals in the making

SALZBURG, Austria (UPI) — President Ford and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat ended two days of talks Monday and said they had generated momentum in the long effort toward Middle Eastern peace.

The talks produced no firm agreements beyond a U.S. promise of more economic aid to Egypt and an Egyptian invitation to Ford to visit Cairo. But the meeting, plus the announcement from Tel Aviv that Israel will thin out its forces on its Sinai front with Egypt, strongly indicated diplomatic deals in the making.

Sadat, in an interview with the National Broadcasting Co., called the partial Israeli pullback "a very encouraging act...a step toward peace. They should not fear peace."

"I didn't ask the President to drop the special relationship between the United States and Israel at all," Sadat said.

"Perhaps," said Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, "we are moving into a period where some momentum toward peace can be achieved."

"The peace process will be a long one," Sadat warned in a rain-soaked news conference he and Ford held in the open courtyard of the 400-year-old Salzburg Residenz Palace where they met. But he called Ford "honest, straightforward, peace-loving and a peace struggler."

Ford, who flies today to Rome and then back to Washington, said that after his meeting in Washington June 11-12 with Israeli Premier Yitzhak Rabin, he would submit a Middle East peace plan "at the appropriate time."

The President said he and Sadat "concluded extensive discussions." Sadat said the "big achievement in this meeting is that I have made the acquaintance of President Ford."

It was their first meeting and they spent three and a half hours in full talks with Kissinger and other aides, plus another six hours together at three state dinners.

The upshot, diplomats said, is that Kissinger probably will be dispatched once again — after the Rabin-Ford meeting — to revive the step-by-step diplomacy that failed on his last Middle East outing in March.

American sources said Ford agreed in principle to accept Sadat's invitation to Cairo, but no date was set.

Ford told the news conference, "My reassessment (of U.S.-Middle East policy) will be completed with a plan."

Wood's memory fails

HARRISBURG — State Sen. T. Newell Wood said Monday he no longer remembers who told him that organized crime might harm the families of Republican senators seeking to oust Frank Mazzei from the Pennsylvania Senate.

Ten days ago, Wood indicated he did know and also said he didn't want to identify the man.

Monday, however, the Luzerne County Republican lawmaker said he doesn't know who made the statement and cannot remember "I thought I did know," Wood said, but added, "I don't."

Wood also disclosed Monday that he has told state and federal investigators he doesn't recall who made the statement.

In the May 24 telephone interview, the 65-year-old Wood said he probably wouldn't tell investigators who made the statement "unless I had to."

Wood also said Monday he cannot remember when the statement, which Wood's Republican colleagues interpreted as a threat, was made. The Senator said the statement could have been made as long ago as last November or last December.

Mazzei, an Allegheny County Democrat, has been sentenced to five years imprisonment for extorting political kickbacks from a Pittsburgh firm doing business with the state.

As Senate Republicans mobilized in April to expel Mazzei from the legislature, Wood alarmed them by relating that their families might be harmed.

Senators to whom Wood made the statement said Wood attributed it to someone associated with organized crime although Wood has denied this.

Israel makes goodwill gesture toward Egypt

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Israel said Monday it will withdraw half of its troops and even more of its weapons from the Sinai Desert front lines as a gesture of goodwill toward Egypt coinciding with the reopening of the Suez canal.

Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin said at a news conference he expected Egypt to reciprocate by permitting cargo bound for Israel to sail through the canal.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger told a Salzburg news conference the move was constructive and "has clearly the intention of easing possible Egyptian concern about Israeli artillery in range of the canal." He called it "a helpful contribution to the process that the United States is attempting to encourage."

Egypt scheduled the reopening of the waterway for Thursday, eight years to the day since the Egyptians closed it at the start of the 1967 Middle East War. Israel seized the Sinai territory from Egypt during that war.

Rabin said Israel will pull out half its 7,000 troops, all 36 of its 122mm cannons and half its 30 tanks up to a distance of 25 miles east of the canal.

Sadat called the move "an encouraging act. I welcome it because it is a step toward peace and they (Israel) should not fear peace."

He made the comment in an interview with John Chancellor of the National Broadcating Co.

One man still missing

Five rescued from oil rig

GRAND ISLE, La. (UPI) — Civilian scuba divers working in the murky waters of the Gulf of Mexico Monday rescued five roughnecks who were trapped for more than 20 hours inside a huge capsized oil rig, but one man remained missing.

The five survived by staying in air pockets in the half-sunken rig, and divers pressed their search in other sections hoping to find the final crewman alive in another air-

"They're still looking for him," Coast Guard spokesman Stan Christman said. "So far, we have no reports of any serious injury."

The first man rescued was placed in a decompression chamber for two hours so his body could gradually get used to normal air pressure.

The other four men, rescued about two hours later, had to stay in the rig until decompression chambers could be flown to the accident site 18 miles offshore from Grand Isle and New Orleans.

The rig, an oil drilling derrick mounted on two big barges, carried a 12-man crew.

It was being towed in the Gulf Sunday when it overturned. Six men were rescued from the surface right away. Three of them were injured, none seriously.

Seven divers were flown in and worked all night without success. Monday morning they found some doors, but could not open them.

The divers used torches to burn through doors and hatchets," said Christman.

The Coast Guard spokesman said they also tried to pump fresh air into the rig, but were unsuccessful.

Senate acted out of emotion

OTTAWAY NEWS SERVICE

Harrisburg Bureau

HARRISBURG — State Sens. Frederick H. Hobbs and T. Newell Wood joined with 45 other senators Monday to expel Allegheny County Democrat Frank Mazzei from the Pennsylvania Senate.

Wood called for the Mazzei ouster in late April, but Hobbs had said earlier he wanted the Senate to give careful study to Mazzei's extortion conviction before voting on any motion to expel the Senator.

"I didn't have any great relish voting for it but at the same time it was the only thing that could be done," Hobbs said, conceding "I don't think there's any question the Senate acted out of emotion."

The emotion was triggered by statements by Wood that senators trying to expel Mazzei might be subjected to reprisals by organized crime.

Hobbs said "this threat thing" had placed the Senate under "such a cloud" the Senate had to expel him.

Probers find CIA smells like roses

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller said Monday he had concluded that while the Central Intelligence Agency was guilty of some illegal acts, it had not undertaken large-scale illegal domestic spying.

Summing up the five-month Rockefeller commission investigation of the CIA, the vice president told reporters:

"There are things that have been done that are in contradiction to the statutes, but in comparison to the total effort (of the CIA), they are not major."

Similar conclusions about CIA activities have been expressed by two other commission members, vice chairman C. Douglass Dillon, the former treasury secretary, and former Gov. Ronald Reagan of California.

The panel, named by President Ford in January to investigate charges of illegal domestic spying by the CIA, held its last meeting to put finishing touches on its 350-page report. The report will be sent to Ford on Friday and may be made public as early as this weekend.

When asked if Ford or the public would be "dumb-founded" by any of the illegal activities revealed in the report, Rockefeller replied: "I doubt it."

A reporter asked Rockefeller if he was implying that there was no "massive illegal domestic spying" by the CIA as alleged in original news reports last December.

"That would be a fair interpretation to draw from what I said, but that doesn't mean there haven't been things done that were wrong and we recommend extensively steps to be taken to prevent it in the future," he replied.

Rockefeller said the eight-member panel was nearly unanimous in its conclusions.

"Here and there there might be an objection or different point of view on a specific recommendation but they are very few and not earth-shaking in character," he said. "Basically it's unanimous."

"We've done a good job, I think," Rockefeller said. "No stones have been left unturned and no punches pulled. I don't think there's very much that hasn't been uncovered and discussed in this report."

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, June 4. It is being held to receive comments on how the board can cut a proposed 1975-76 district budget of $5.9 million and an attendant real estate tax increase of 25 mills.

Nun pushes women's lib

CHICAGO — A nun of the Sisters of Mercy order has taken the women's liberation movement into the sacred halls of the Chicago Roman Catholic Archdiocese, largest in the nation. Sister Teresa Maltby said Monday she has requested an end to the "systematic exclusion of women from participation" in the archdiocese. A nun for 13 years specializing in religious education, Sister Teresa said she felt that women have not been permitted to participate in church matters because of very strong traditions.

Pa. to lose some welfare aid

WASHINGTON — The Department of Health, Education and Welfare said Monday that seven states will lose a portion of their federal welfare aid for failing to provide free preventive health care to poor children. The financial penalties are the first ever applied by HEW to states which were ordered by Congress more than seven years ago to begin offering the health services to needy children. The states penalized and the amount they will lose are: Hawaii, $75,847; Indiana, $143,516; Minnesota, $280,997; Montana $27,889; New Mexico $70,646; North Dakota, $26,206; and Pennsylvania $1,048,441.

Warning on G.E. ovens

WASHINGTON — The Food and Drug Administration is warning the owners of 5,300 General Electric microwave ovens to stop using them until repairs can be made to stop radiation leakage up to 10 times what the law allows. In addition the FDA's Bureau of Radiological Health revealed that another 13,000 GE microwave ovens manufactured prior to July of 1973 may also have a radiation leakage, but the company contends there is no hazard and the matter is still under negotiation. The ovens involved were described as "microwave thermal oven range combination units" called "Cooking Center" or "Versatronic." Involved are model Nos. J845001, J885001 and RE747001, manufactured in Columbia, Md., and Louisville, Ky., from July through November of 1973, and model No. J845001 produced through February of 1974 in Louisville.

FTC urges drug price ads

WASHINGTON — The Federal Trade Commission Monday proposed rules to wipe out all state laws against advertising prescription drug prices. It said the change could save consumers perhaps several hundred million dollars a year. There are at least 33 states which have such laws or regulations, frequently enforced by pharmaceutical societies, the FTC said. On top of that, it said, surveys indicate nearly half of the American people don't know that prescription prices vary from store to store, and many are under the impression that such prices are actually controlled.

B & H sues Polaroid

CHICAGO — Bell & Howell Co. filed suit against fellow photography giant Polaroid Corp. for more than $20 million Monday, charging Polaroid with failure to pay bills and meet obligations and breach of written agreements. The three-count complaint related to the design and development of an instant motion picture system by Bell & Howell for Polaroid. One count charged that Polaroid refused to reimburse Bell & Howell $8.7 million for costs incurred on behalf of Polaroid, including expenditures for inventories, capital equipment and related commitments. Bell & Howell said the expenditures were authorized by Polaroid in written agreements during the period from 1968 to 1974.

Missionaries' slayer convicted

AUSTIN, Tex. — Robert Elmer Kleasen, described by the prosecuting attorney as a "warped mind" who kept his victim's gold watches as trophies, Monday was convicted of capital murder in the mutilation slaying of one of the two Mormon missionaries he had invited home for dinner. Kleasen was convicted of the murder of Mark Fischer of Milwaukee, Wis. He was also accused of murdering Gary Smith Darley of Simi Valley, Calif., but was tried only for Fischer's murder.

Cuba returns hijackers

WASHINGTON — Cuba has quietly sent three American citizens to Barbados and into FBI hands on aircraft hijacking charges, the State Department said Monday. The three were the first alleged hijackers to be sent home by Cuba since it signed an agreement with the United States more than two years ago either to hold persons who forced airliners to carry them to asylum in Cuba or return to them to the United States to stand trial. The State Department said it was studying the significance of the move, coming at a time when the United States and other members of the Organization of American States are studying the possibility of lifting OAS diplomatic and trade sanctions imposed on Cuba in 1964.

Japan's Sato dies

TOKYO — Former Japanese Prime Minister Eisaku Sato, whose record rule of nearly eight years was marked by staunch pro-American policies and was capped by the Nobel Peace Prize, died Monday at age 74, two weeks after suffering a stroke. Sato had been in a coma and listed in critical condition since collapsing during a dinner party at a Japanese geisha restaurant May 19. He lay unconscious in the restaurant for three days before doctors were able to move him to a hospital, where he died. Sato served as prime minister from 1964 to 1972, the longest consecutive term in Japanese history. He led the nation through a period of economic prosperity mixed with domestic turmoil.

Most state governors support death penalty

By United Press International

A majority of the nation's governors favor some form of capital punishment, most of them on grounds that it deters criminals.

A United Press International poll of the 50 U.S. governors shows 28 favor a death sentence and 17 are against it. The other five governors refused to take a stand.

Support for capital punishment among governors is heaviest in the South, where only Gov. Ray Blanton of Tennessee, which has passed a death penalty law, opposes it.

"I've always been opposed to capital punishment and I'm still opposed to it," he said.

Opinions in each of three other regions — the West, Midwest and Northeast — broke about even.

One of the strongest supporters of capital punishment is Gov. Julian M. Carroll of

U.S. to remove last B-52s from air bases in Thailand

BANGKOK (UPI) — Thailand's military command announced Monday the United States will withdraw the last 17 American B-52 bombers from the nation, removing from Southeast Asia the planes that played a major part in the Indochina war.

The Thai Supreme Command headquarters said the planes will leave the U Tapao air base, about 100 miles south of Bangkok, on June 6 as part of the reduction of the American presence in Thailand.

At the height of the war in South Vietnam, B-52s took off from U Tapao almost daily on bombing raids over Indochina. The announcement also said 31 F-111 swing-wing fighter-bombers based at Korat, 300 miles northeast of Bangkok, would be withdrawn from Thailand on June 15 and 7,500 U.S. servicemen would leave the country by the end of the month.

The forthcoming departure of the American aircraft and military personnel are just part of a phased withdrawal ordered by Premier Kukrit Pramoj, who has said all U.S. forces must be out of the country by March of next year.

Officials from both countries at a meeting Monday agreed on the timetable for the withdrawal, reliable sources said.

Monday's announcement said the Ubon military base, about 400 miles northeast of Bangkok, would be closed by the end of the month.

The departure of the 7,500 servicemen would leave 19,500 Americans at U.S. bases in the country.

The Kukrit Pramoj administration, which came to power last March, announced the first stage of the American withdrawal May 5 and subsequently made known its commitment to the departure of all American forces.

Doctors' strike threatens 25 hospitals in New York

By United Press International

The doctors' strike over soaring malpractice insurance costs which started in California last month ended in that state Monday but a job action by medical professionals in New York threatened possible bankruptcy for as many as 25 hospitals.

There were also reports of doctor disaffection in a number of other states for the same cause.

In California, anesthesiologists, who had refused for a month to handle any but life-or-death surgery cases, were returning to work under a temporary truce on the assumption that the state legislature would work out a long-term solution to the malpractice problem within the next few months.

In New York medical professionals warned Monday that 25 voluntary hospitals in the state would go bankrupt and shut down within two weeks if the doctors' job action to protest soaring malpractice insurance costs continues.

John Conorton, executive vice president of the Greater New York Hospital Association representing 83 non-profit hospitals, said, "Based on the estimates of our fiscal experts, about 25 hospitals in the state would close. If they close their doors, they probably won't open again."

He estimated that about half the closings would be hospitals within the city limits and would be forced by falling revenues from Medicare, Medicaid and Blue Cross.

He said some hospitals were reporting admissions down 20-50 per cent as doctors refuse new patients and curtail non-emergency services and elective surgery.

Other developments:

—In Doylestown, Pa., a substantial number of members of the Bucks County Medical Society began a slowdown Sunday at four of six county hospitals and vowed to continue it until the legislature acts on insurance reforms.

Portugal requests more U.S. aid

LISBON (UPI) — Portugal's left-leaning military government has asked the United States for more financial aid to help it out of an economic crisis, Information Minister Jorge Correia Jesuino said Monday.

Jesuino said in an interview that the request was discussed at the NATO conference in Brussels last week by Portuguese Foreign Ministry officials and representatives from the U.S. State department.

The American response was described by Jesuino as positive in principle — "we watch and hope," he said.

The United States recently granted Portugal a loan of $25 million but Jesuino said it was more symbolic than anything else.

"It is not really meaningful," he said. "But it is understood that if the U.S. Congress has said yes to that kind of loan, the figure of 25 million can be increased, can be enlarged."

Jesuino said Portugal was not asking the Soviet Union for a similar loan but had trade agreements with Moscow that would provide some help.

In addition to the $25 million loan, the United States has provided a $20 million housing investment guarantee for Portugal and limited technical assistance. State Department officials in Washington said Monday there was for the moment "every reason" to continue aid.

Portugal reassured its NATO allies in Brussels that it would remain an important part of the Western alliance despite their fears of Communist influence within the ruling Armed Forces Movement.

Antiques important to U.S. ambassador

SAIGON (Delayed) (UPI) — U.S. Ambassador Graham Martin died the day before his departure from South Vietnam to arrange shipment of dozens of crates of antiques out of the country for a former friend of his, knowledgeable sources said Saturday.

The sources said they did not know if the shipment made it out of the nation but Martin's friend, the former Saigon ambassador to Thailand, was trapped in the takeover and committed suicide.

He was Lt. Gen. Tran Ngoc Tam who first met Martin in Thailand. Both men served as ambassadors to Bangkok during the late 1960s.

Tam was left behind in the sudden U.S. evacuation of Saigon April 29 and committed suicide because he feared harsh treatment from the new Communist regime, which took power the next day.

Six other generals also killed themselves, while another 24 reported to the new authorities after the capture of Saigon and now are living at homes in Saigon awaiting orders to report to reeducation courses.

The sources said Martin early on the morning of April 28 ordered embassy officials to arrange for the crating of an estimated 50 or more boxes of antiques and other valuable possessions at Tam's home in suburban Saigon.

When officials told their superiors fighting was underway at the Newport Bridge between the packing company and Tam's home they were told by embassy radio:

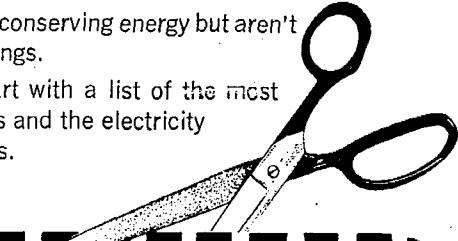

"The ambassador is personally interested in seeing Ambassador Tam's possessions are crated and shipped out."

UPI newsmen monitored the radio broadcast but were uncertain at the time of the identity of the Vietnamese involved in Martin's order.

As you can see, discarding your electric toothbrush or electric shaver will do little while cutting down air conditioner use this summer can save a lot.

And, while you no doubt reduced household heating temperatures to 68 degrees, last winter, what about your water heater? Second only to electric heat, it tops our list of electricity users... especially since it's on the job 24 hours a day. Turning down your water heater's thermostat to a maximum of 140 degrees helps. Also, you can turn the water heater off altogether while you're away from home for extended periods.

Proper precautions should be taken to prevent freezing in cold weather, etc.

There are some comparisons on our chart, also. For instance, note that an electric range uses about 200 kilowatt hours every two months... a microwave oven which can be used to cook many of the same meals, uses about 32. A kilowatt hour by the way, is equivalent to a 100-watt bulb burning for 10 hours.

While it's true that most major appliances are essential, we can learn to use our appliances more efficiently... waiting to wash full loads of dishes or clothes and not using hot water whenever cold water will do, are good examples.

One last thought... remember to turn off the range, lights, radios, TV's, etc., whenever they're not in use.

Treasurer write-in votes add Pike Demo to ballot

MILFORD — Pike County election officials announced Monday that Joyce Phillips of Milford captured the Democratic nomination for county treasurer with 128 write-in votes.

Mrs. Phillips, proprietor of the Tom Quick Inn, will be one of five Democratic candidates seeking county-wide offices. Democrats did not field candidates for district attorney or coroner.

Other Democrats running for county offices are: James Duffy and Harlan Crellin, commissioner; George Fluehr, prothonotary and Emile Saltzman, auditor.

On the municipal level, Russell VanBuskirk was declared the Democratic winner for the supervisor's post in Greene Township. VanBuskirk received 19 write-in votes in the Democratic primary, but was defeated on the Republican ticket by Edward Simon. Both men will vie for the supervisor's position in the fall election.

In Milford, three men received write-in votes for borough council on the Democratic slate. Richard Smith received 13 write-in votes, while George Aspinwall and Edmund McEvoy tied at 11 write-in votes each.

McEvoy lost the Democratic nomination to Aspinwall in a drawing of lots conducted by Judge James Marsh.

For the November election, there will be four candidates running for three borough council seats. Republican candidates are George Aspinwall, Richard Smith and Edmund McEvoy. Democratic nominees are: Joe Dunn, Aspinwall and Smith.

P.V. okays addition for Eldred

BRODHEADSVILLE — Construction of a six-classroom addition to Eldred Elementary School in Kunkletown — an addition urgently needed to relieve overcrowding in the four-classroom school — moved closer to beginning last week when the Pleasant Valley School Board approved the addition's construction documents.

Part-timer forestalls merger

EFFORT — A year ago many West Enders believed that the tiny 60-member St. John's Lutheran Church would soon be forced to close down and merge with Salem-St. Paul's Lutheran Church, the largest of the three charges in the Pleasant Valley Lutheran Parish.

And one of the reasons why most people thought the historic church would have to merge was because of the high cost of supporting a pastor.

Now St. John's has an experienced pastor all of its own, it's operating completely independent of the Pleasant Valley Department of Education, an approval Nye said should take place this week.

Having spent 38 years in the ministry, Rev. Ruloff travels to Effort for Sunday services, conducts cathectical class on Thursday afternoons, administers communion to the sick, performs weddings and visits the sick in the hospital whenever necessary.

Having spent 38 years in the ministry, Rev. Ruloff travels to Effort for Sunday services, conducts cathectical class on Thursday afternoons, administers communion to the sick, performs weddings and visits the sick in the hospital whenever necessary.

Although living at Blue Heron Lake, 39 miles from Effort, the pastor said he can see that with the influx of developments to the Effort area, St. John's will eventually build up its membership to the point where it can support a full-time pastor.

Having come to the Poconos regularly since 1925, Rev. Ruloff, a Pennsylvania Dutchman, was born in Allentown and graduated from Muhlenberg College and the Lutheran Seminary in Mt. Airy.

Although the new pastor said his strong point is his love of people, he said he is impatient with Christians who appear to be committed in name only.

Retired pastor aids church

STROUDSBURG — Official results from the May 20 primary election in Monroe County are still not complete, according to Mrs. Cherry Rahn, chief clerk of the election board.

Certain election results were recounted at a 9:30 a.m. Saturday session by Judge Arlington Williams, Thomas Joyce and the election board.

Mrs. Rahn said Judge Williams instructed her not to divulge the results of the recount until today, since the candidates were to be informed by mail and he wanted them to be the first to know.

Recounts were done for three races, Barrett Township supervisors, Price Township supervisors and Stroudsburg second ward councilman.

Mrs. Rahn explained recounts are commonly requested in cases of write-in votes.

At the Temple Lutheran Church in Burkes County for eight years. He pastored for four years at St. John's Lutheran Church in Stroudsburg and went on to pastor in Perkasie for 13 years before retiring.

Several Democrats thirst for heady wine of Presidency

By DONALD R. LARRABEE
Ottaway News Service
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — There are now six declared Democratic candidates for president. A seventh, George Wallace, is expected to announce in a few days. There are three men in the Senate who are sitting back, watching the "out front" candidates make the mistakes they once made.

Then there is Sen. Edward M. Kennedy who occupies a rare status that is the envy of all the others and the continuing source of the greatest speculation. Kennedy remains a political enigma as far as 1976 is concerned.

Rarely have so many thirsted for the heady wine of the Presidency — and yet it remains the clear and nearly-unanimous opinion of political observers that only two men can have their party nominations for the simple asking — Gerald Ford and Edward Kennedy.

Forecasting what lies ahead in next year's turbulent presidential scene is risky business. The pundits are hedging in view of the shocks and surprises of recent years. For many of them, it is no longer safe to assume that the incumbent president will most surely seek election.

Sen. Henry Jackson clearly has the most financial support to date among the Democrats. But it is hard to find any money around the Capital that gives the Washington State Senator a chance to win the nomination. The campaigns of Congressman Morris Udall, former Georgia Governor Jimmy Carter, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas and former Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma are straining to be seen. Former North Carolina Governor Terry Sanford is the latest forlorn entry.

Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana, not yet announced, is lying low but is said to be quietly building an impressive organization at the local level. He is busy courting mayors which may not be a bad idea since most of them become convention delegates. Bayh may be the sleeper.

What about Wallace? The latest national polls make him the Democratic front-runner when Kennedy's name isn't considered — and sometimes when it is. Wallace is far and away the best financed of the Democrats. And President Ford's canny strategist, Melvin Laird, says the Alabama Governor would win important primaries in Michigan and Wisconsin if they were held today.

The conventional wisdom is that the Democrats will deny Wallace a place on their ticket, even if he comes to the convention with 30 per cent of the delegates. He is likely to seize on this to run as an independent. There is talk now — as there was in 1972 before the Wallace assassination attempt — that the governor will force the choice of the next president into the House of Representatives.

Which brings us back to Senator Kennedy. His repeated statements that he has made up his mind unequivocally not to run next year are accepted by his Senate colleagues. Yet they have a strange way of adding: "There's no telling what would happen if Kennedy actually were offered the nomination."

Melvin Laird is predicting that Kennedy will get the nomination, if he stays out of the primaries. He says the Senator would be the strongest Democratic candidate against President Ford and that Maine's Sen. Edmund Muskie has the next best chance.

Muskie has put the presidency on the backburner this year, concentrating instead on his new Senate position as head of the Budget Committee which could make him a power in Congress. Privately, he says he is happier without having people scratch his presidential itch. He is content to wait and see if any of the others capture the public fancy.

Kennedy's close political allies in Congress are convinced he can overcome the Chappaquiddick issue if other personal problems, involving the illnesses of his wife and children, can be resolved.

Majority Leader Thomas P. (Tip) O'Neill claims Kennedy is already a candidate. He says Teddy keeps asking him about the vibrations he is receiving in appearances around the country. And the House leader went so far as to remark on television recently that he was sure Kennedy would be "delighted" that he was discussing the matter and predicting both his nomination and election.

When O'Neill is asked about this, he says: "Oh, it's true. Teddy called me after the TV show and said I was embarrassing him. So I replied, 'All you have to do is tell me to stop.' And, says O'Neill, he hasn't.

Poconos can use improved airport

Should the Pocono Mountain Airport be improved with public funds? Yes.

The airport at Mt. Pocono was established and has been maintained by public money. It is run by a public authority (which leases the operation to a private individual). True, it is used by a small segment of the public but to the principal benefit of industries, resorts and sportsmen, who are among the heaviest payers of local taxes.

The Airport Authority has a plan to expand by repaving and lengthening its present secondary runway. The plan goes further into dreamland on the possibility that the Poconos will grow to suburb proportions within the next 40 years.

What's suggested soon, however, is a plan to extend the secondary runway and permit blind (instrument) approaches for landing. This would cost something over $1 million. Of this amount federal and state would supply 87.5 per cent providing the local taxpayers put up 12.5 per cent.

Local seed money

The county commissioners have agreed to put up $150,000 over a period of 10 years to provide the local 12.5 per cent and that's what has been loudly discussed the last year.

There is confusion. Someone used the word "jetport" in referring to the proposed expansion. Visions of Newark, Kennedy and thundering 747's sprang into many heads. The Authority is talking about merely making it easier and safer for the type of jets that are already using the airport — twin-engine corporate and pleasure craft.

Others note that the full Kimball plan covers potential expansion and expense for $10 million. True enough, except that the last $9 million is presently pie-in-the-sky based on possibilities. And what's more, local tax money would again have to be appropriated toward a share of that.

It may be in 10 or 20 years we'll want to get into that super expansion. If we don't we can stop it by denying local funds.

Better traffic pattern

Some of the people who live near the airport fear the improvement in the secondary runway will increase traffic over their homes. It probably will, since surely a few more planes will make use of the better facility. On the other hand, resurfacing and lengthening the current secondary runway will put the main takeoff pattern (the noisy one) into the northwest over Camp Tawagitha. That's the least populated area around the airport, much less than the current southwest pattern.

We're talking about making a more useful, first class operation out of a barely adequate airport. And we needn't be ashamed to accept 87.5 federal and state financial support. That's the way all public airport improvements are financed.

Simply, the airport is there, needs improving and we are in a position to help ourselves at reasonable cost.

Bunker Hill issue

The next United States issue will be the Battle of Bunker Hill in the Bicentennial theme with first day sale set June 17 at Charlestown, Mass.

This will be a 10-cent value and will show the left side of the painting by John Trumbull entitled "The Battle of Bunker Hill". The right side of the painting was issued October 18, 1968 to commemorate John Trumbull as one of the Revolutionary painters.

Canada will issue three commemoratives for Olympic Track and Field events with the values 20 cents (Pole vault), 25 cents (Marathon runner) and 50 cents (Female Hurdler) on June 11.

The United Nations four values and two souvenir sheets commemorating the 30th anniversary of the United Nations will have first day sale June 26 at both the United Nations and San Francisco.

Club news

The Pocono Mountain Stamp Club will meet at 8 p.m. June 3. This will be the final meeting for the summer and election of officers will be held.

The Club outing will be held Sunday, June 8 at "Stroudmoor."

Ted Kennedy's candidacy

Jeffrey Hart

Is Teddy coming? The guess here is that he is not, and for several pretty solid reasons.

True enough, the White House expects to be running against Teddy Kennedy, in 1976, but it will be recalled that Richard Nixon was also constantly preoccupied with Teddy only to find himself running against the paper-mache liberal, George McGovern.

It is also true that the nomination of Teddy might solve at least temporarily some of the major intramural problems of the Democratic Party. To some degree, Teddy would paper over the chasm that separates the lunch-pail Democratic constituency from the New Politics grumpy-glasses and Lenin-beard types.

Finally, it has to be admitted that the current field of Democratic candidates to the left of George Wallace endows Teddy with a certain luster.

Six months ago, Senator Henry Jackson appeared to be the most electable Democrat, though he faced a hard fifth for the nomination. Jackson possessed a certain specific gravity, he seemed competent, and he stood within shouting distance at least of the middle of the political spectrum.

But in the last six months, Jackson has undergone "Stassenization" — that is, he has undergone a lesion of seriousness, perhaps an irreversible one. In order to propitiate the Left, he turned dove-ish on the war, he sounded McGovernish on the refugees, and he attacked Ford's handling of the Mayaguez rescue only to reverse himself when it appeared to have been successful. Jackson looks panicky, lacking in major league political instinct.

Other contenders

The other Democratic contenders so far do not even seem to be plausible Vice Presidential candidates.

Fred Harris is a radical chic candidate masquerading as a populist.

So-called "new Southerners" like Jimmy Carter and Terry Sanford came across like New York Times editorials with a drawl.

And so, despite his emphatic statement of non-candidacy, the Democratic gaze turns back to Teddy.

But, conceding that Teddy could be nominated by acclamation, is there really much doubt about what would happen in the election, or what kind of a campaign it would turn out to be?

In the first place, recent polls showing a decline of concern over Chappaquiddick are surely misleading. What killed off interest in Chappaquiddick was precisely Teddy's statement of non-candidacy. Last year, growing speculation about a Teddy candidacy the scrutiny again would intensify.

In the campaign itself, things would get very rough. Gore Vidal has foreseen one kind of campaign TV spot. First, you would see a finger on the nuclear button. Then you would see videotapes of Teddy trying to explain what happened at Chappaquiddick. Republican partisans would certainly begin to call for Teddy to "clear himself" by taking a lie detector test.

There would be a savage informal campaign: bumper stickers reading "After the Crooks, the Bum, Vote Teddy," and "Would You Let Teddy Drive Your Used Car?", and "Nobody Drowned at Watergate."

In the second place, Teddy is completely out of tune with the national mood on the issues. He is a buser, and the nation is overwhelmingly against busing. He is a welfareist, and the majority has had it with high welfare taxation. He is an arms-cutter at a time when the perception is beginning to sink in that the world is a pretty chilly place.

Moreover, though we are now hearing a great deal about Teddy's charisma, and it is true that many respond favorably to him, it is also true that just as many people loathe and detest him, including a fair number of near-violent citizens in his own Massachusetts.

No, the Teddy solution to the Democrats' 1976 problem is probably an illusion. In the event of a deadlock at the convention, this could really be the year of the dark horse, and, rather than Teddy, something on the order of Hugh Carey-John Glenn might well emerge.

Secret out on how Peace Corps lost its idealism

WASHINGTON — The story can now be told how the Peace Corps lost its idealism.

The details have been buried in secret files for almost 10 years, but insiders have slipped us some of the suppressed documents.

At the call of the late President John F. Kennedy, thousands of young Americans volunteered to go to the forgotten corners of the earth to help the disadvantaged.

It was a noble experiment which soon began to flounder. Inevitably, the young idealists became entangled in red tape and suffocated by politics.

Merely to get through the selection process, several agreed, a candidate had to "keep his head down and mouth shut." One trainee described the indoctrination as "the most degrading 12 weeks of my life."

By the late 1960s, creeping bureaucracy had turned the idealism into pragmatism. The programs had become so encumbered that one official concluded: "The Peace Corps could function effectively only in those countries which could do quite well without us."

Other volunteers saw themselves, in the words of their secret reports, as no more than "political emissaries."

"The Peace Corps is not set up as an altruistic agency . . ." complained one recruit, "but rather is a political organ of the State Department." The volunteers were being used, he charged, "to influence people at the grass-roots level to the American way of thinking."

The experience in faraway Somalia was

Jack Anderson
with Les Whitten

typical. Ambassador Raymond Thurston sent a telegram to the State Department in 1968 demanding that some Peace Corps teachers be replaced. Apparently, they were more interested in serving the Somalis than in carrying out his political policies.

"The Peace Corps is in Somalia," charged one volunteer, "because it's the only thing the United States has going there."

Another protested that the Peace Corps administration makes "the Somalis get down on their hands and knees and kiss our feet just for a few school books or some lumber and cement . . . The Peace Corps says do it our way or you don't get anything."

But the criticism didn't get far. When the dissatisfied volunteers tried to make their critical comments part of an official report, Peace Corps headquarters ordered all but two of the copies burned. Officials were instructed to tell anyone asking for a copy that "a report was made directly to the director and no copies are on file."

Here are other random problems that were swept into the secret files:

— The Peace Corps often neglected to take into account the culture of a country before sending in volunteers. For example, a young woman who was sent to Afghanistan as a teacher found she was considered a "prostitute" because she was unmarried and was living with another single girl. She complained that no single woman would ever be accepted into the community.

Scathing comments

— Some volunteers made scathing comments about the people they were supposed to be helping. Here are some typical remarks, for example, from Peace Corps volunteers in Morocco: "You don't feel at ease with them" . . . "I've never met a Moroccan I felt I really know — the women are impossible and the men are silly" . . . "If you can cheat a Moroccan and not get into a fight, they're your friends" . . . "Their fatalism gets you mad."

— Volunteers didn't always find a welcome mat in the countries they went to help. A secret 1968 telegram from Sierra Leone tells of a Peace Corps conference disrupted by armed soldiers, who demanded to know why the volunteers were conducting a private meeting. The conference had to be resumed behind closed doors of the U.S. embassy.

— The Peace Corps high command in Washington tried in vain to stop volunteers in the field from smoking marijuana. A group in New Delhi responded typically that it "would be foolish to make rules which could not be enforced." One of the New Delhi volunteers stated flatly that "everybody in this group blows pot."

— The heavy hand of bureaucracy not only sought conformity but brought ineptitude to the Peace Corps. Several volunteers became so disgusted with the bureaucratic trivia, for example, that they rebelled at attending a conference in Africa to discuss administrative problems. They couldn't be bothered, they grumbled, with such "Mickey Mouse" meetings.

The bureaucratizing of the Peace Corps is now largely complete. What started out as a shining idea has become largely just another government agency, with the attendant red tape entanglements, memos in septuplicate and petty routines.

Footnote: As evidence of the Peace Corps' bureaucratic ways, it took us five telephone calls to locate a spokesman who could comment for the agency. He denied that the Peace Corps had lost its idealism. Their studies show, he said, that today's volunteers may be more professional but they still are motivated by a desire to help less fortunate people. He described the Peace Corps as "a very humane organization, which tries desperately to respond to human needs."

In the meantime, the Institute pursues its work as best it can with such grants and benefactions as come its way. Current research concerns mental disease, cancer and the molecular process of aging and how it may be postponed by proper diet.

Wise physician

Diet plays an important part in the work of the clinic, where they not only talk about preventive medicine, they attempt to practice it. The general feeling seems to be that a wise physician only prescribes as a last resort a medicine whose molecular structure isn't one normally occurring in the human organism.

Preventive medicine, at least in the primitive form our knowledge permits us to practice it, isn't very sexy. How can you report spectacular cures and great advances in the "wars" against cancer, tuberculosis, venereal disease, diabetes and angina pectoris if your patients die quietly in their sleep at age 95 of pure disillusionment at the tolls of the younger members of their species?

Dear Ann Landers: Your column is a great tool for educating people. I have learned from it and now I want to educate others. Although I never graduated from high school I am an authority on one subject: Turkeys.

I have raised turkeys for 33 years and discovered something that most people do not know. From very close observation I have learned that turkeys breed through the nose. The Tom turkey has a small extension above his snoot which becomes visible when he struts.

Humans are unaware of this but the hen turkey knows. Turkeys strut when they want to mate. It's a lot like a tribal dance. If a hen turkey is interested in mating she will join the dance and rub her nostril against the Tom's snoot. What occurs is the actual mating process.

Some of your so-called experts will say this is not true. I say let them look in books. I look at turkeys. —

Wyckoff's Wyckoff Shopper

Did you KNOW we have TWO art shows going on simultaneously at Wyckoff's? The Keystone Room holds the unforgettable images recorded on film by the finest of our area photographers in an exhibition arranged by the Creative Camera Photo Club. This extra-ordinary showing will remain on display through Saturday of this week, and we urge you to take a minute to see it. It is artistry thru the eye of the camera as seen by creative people who have captured a "memorable moment" in a split second.

It occurs to me that this is a splendid time to remind YOU that our new camera corner is located in the marvelous Plaza Shop Home Center that IS THE Talk Of The Town!! The "PSHC" is also "THE" place to meet and greet your friends over a coke, a hot dog or a hamburger! The Snack Shack has caught on like wildfire . . . and it's fun . . . "Try it, you'll like it!!!"

Now . . . back to the "other" art exhibit! (Do you know anybody who can get side-tracked as easily as I do? It's easy when you have so many interesting things to talk about ALL under one roof . . . Oops . . . no, now it's TWO roofs since the Plaza Shop Home Center is open!) COME with me to the LOWER LEVEL! THERE is our second "art show," selected personally by Dick Kishbaugh for your home, your office, or second home!

By MODERN REFLECTIONS I & II, these award winning selections from around the world are contemporary art reproductions specifically designed for modern day living. They are an impressive 22 x 28 inches and sell at an unbelievable $8.00!! That's not the half of it . . . They have a protective coating for long life, are stain resistant for carefree enjoyment, and no frame is needed . . . they've got the "streamlined" look of today. Ready to hang . . . separately or in groups, I could not believe the color reproduction . . . so faithful, so vibrant, that they belie their modest price!! Once you see them, I KNOW that you will agree and will walk out with at least one tucked under your arm!!

So, Heigh-Ho . . . come to Wyckoff's today and see the exhibition by the Creative Camera Photo Club in the Keystone Room where prints CAN BE ORDERED from the black and white and color "masterpieces;" and journey the short route to the lower level to see MODERN REFLECTIONS I and II that will enhance your life with JOY!!!!!!

Crossword By Eugene Sheffer

He's building his nest egg, but he's using real eggs!

By MAUREEN RUFÉ
Pocono Record Reporter

EFFORT — Just what does a pregnant woman in Tunisia and a Ukrainian attic have in common? Why, eggs, of course.

And if you don't believe that, ask John A. Wilbert, the new owner of the Dutch Door Gift Shop in Effort, which will soon feature an egg museum for the public.

Containing more than 500 eggs from more than 60 countries around the world, the Wilbert egg collection was on display at one time at the famed Hallmark Art Gallery on Fifth Avenue in New York City. At the time, more than 2,000 visitors viewed the family collection of articles made out of egg shells and exhibits of things that have been made into the form of an egg.

According to the new shop and museum owner, eggs have been popular all over the world to ward off evil spirits, to bring good luck and for decorative purposes. Easter is just one of the times of the year that the egg has been used in celebration.

Egg amulets

In Tunisia, for example, a woman in child birth wears a necklace of eggs as an amulet. The Ukrainians store eggs in their roofs to ward off lightning.

It was more than 5,000 years ago, according to Wilbert, that the Chinese started giving red eggs to their friends when a new child was born. The egg was presented for good luck.

The symbol of perfection and many times referred to as nature's perfect shape, the egg has been the symbol of fertility for many civilizations and has symbolized hope, purity and the promise of a better world in Christian traditions.

Also used in magic and witchcraft, the egg, in certain exorcism practices, serves as a scapegoat. In parts of the Middle East and Africa, ostrich eggs hang in both churches and mosques.

Having discovered the Poconos only last year, Wilbert said he started his famous egg collection 15 years ago when he was looking for an unusual Easter gift for his wife and daughter. In an exclusive Manhattan shop, he purchased an egg with a golden gondola suspended from it for his wife and a beaded egg for his daughter.

Obtaining many eggs in nearby Pocono locations, Wilbert said the price of an ostrich egg in recent years has skyrocketed from $12.50 to $50.

Locating his egg museum and, accompanying antique shop in what he refers to as the heart of egg country, Wilbert said he thinks the Poconos offer some of the most beautiful scenery in the world. He hopes to show his eggs to local tourists who visit the area.

The Wilbert collection ranges from elegant hand-cut crystal eggs imported from eastern Europe to some hand-painted chicken eggs enclosed in a satin-lined box, which was made in Red China.

Faberge eggs

The display also contains two reproductions of the famous A La Faberge egg designs. Faberge was a noted jeweler who was in the service of the Czar of Russia. Every year at Easter, he designed eggs encased in gold and silver and embedded them with precious stones for the royal family.

Only ever having created 53 eggs, the originals sell for as much as $250,000 each. The originals are in the hands of wealthy collectors such as the "Forbes" magazine family.

The Faberge reproduction in the Effort shop is a delicately crafted gold swan with a tiny egg resting in its back.

There are eggs made from cowry shells and candy egg molds, Polish wooden eggs whose hollow insides contain such treasures as miniature wooden soldiers, and hand-painted duck eggs made into a double-tiered oil lamp.

Three dimensional eggs

Handpainted porcelain eggs from England occupy a shelf with chicken eggs that contain three-dimensional scenes of a bride and groom getting married and a skier soaring down a mountain.

Wilbert even features a Watergate egg with a lady bug crawling up the side of the shell, and in one case, an egg-shaped geode containing a Kimberly diamond center has been cut in two. The unusual stone is from the Pocono Mineral and Gem Company in the Poconos.

There are Venetian glass eggs from Venice, and hand-painted Lemoine China eggs from France.

An etching technique is used to transfer tiny figurines to a Taiwan egg, while a scratch process characterizes a Lithuanian version of an egg gift. The Poles are famous for wooden eggs, and the Indians work in jeweled eggs.

The Pennsylvania Dutch egg on display is painted in such a way it is known as "slipwear." The technique received the unusual name, because it produces such a shiny product, the egg slips out of the hand easily.

These are just a sampling of the many eggs that will be on display for the public in the near future. The collection is in the process of being moved to the Effort shop and viewing hours are expected to be announced this month.

Imported eggs dot museum shelves.

Babies also susceptible

Does grandpa have mono?

NEW YORK (UPI) — Uncle Sam, through the National Institutes of Health, wants to help you learn the facts about "kissing disease" — mononucleosis.

He'll send you a free government backgrounder on the disease. (Just write to the address below.)

The government is into kissing disease because a lot of misinformation circulates about the ailment. It strikes more than the amorous. Babies and old folks can catch it, for example.

But 70 to 80 per cent of those getting mono are between 15 and 30. Since one route of transmission of the disease is the oropharyngeal pathway — mouth and throat — the name "kissing disease" seems apt.

Prolonged kissing probably allows exchange in the saliva of virus-infected cells from the mouth," it is noted in the backgrounder. "Mononucleosis."

Babies are thought to pass it on possibly via the oral-fecal route. At any rate, close personal contact is implicated in spread of the disease. Coughing and sneezing may also spread it but this has not been clearly documented.

The season for mono can be any time. College authorities say they see more cases in early spring and fall. About 50 out of 100,000 get mono annually, according to one estimate.

The disease has been recognized for more than a century but its cause still is a medical mystery. Experts think it is caused by a herpes-like virus, but they don't have proof.

Symptoms vary, as does severity of a specific case. The infection's familiar symptoms include sore throat, swollen lymph glands, fever — from 101 to 105 degrees over a few days.

A diagnostic laboratory test can be done in a doctor's office. It takes about three minutes.

For years standard treatment for a confirmed case was bed rest for four to six weeks. Limited activity often was advised for three months after "Therefore, lifting, straining and other competitive sports should be avoided until recovery is complete.

"Other activity is limited solely by a person's symptoms and how he feels — not by blood tests of other criteria."

The backgrounder on mono makes this other point:

"Treatment is symptomatic and non-specific because there is no drug effective against mono."

"Rest, plenty of fluids and a well balanced diet are recommended. Aspirin is given for headache, muscle pains and chills, and salt gargles for sore throats."

Variety vases

There's no need to confine your flower arrangements to standard vases — for variety try child's beach pail filled with daisies; a hollowed-out watermelon overflowing with asters, zinnias and baby's breath; a large sea shell abrim with blue cornflowers. The possibilities are endless and fascinating.

Don't get frustrated

Try home canning

By DAWN OLSON
Asst. Home Economist
Cooperative Extension Service

Both new and experienced home canners will sometimes be challenged and sometimes frustrated during the canning season. It's important that new canners learn proper techniques to get maximum satisfaction from canning.

Many experienced canners will find they need to change some ways they do things, so they will be more satisfied with the foods they can. Both new and experienced canners will find these suggestions helpful to increase satisfactions and reduce frustrations of canning.

As with all other jobs, planning ahead will make canning easier, more dependable and more satisfying. Planning ahead includes having the necessary equipment and supplies ready and in good working condition.

This means the pressure canner operates accurately and the person doing the canning is very familiar with all procedures for canning in the pressure canner. If the pressure canner is not functioning properly, arrange to buy or borrow a canner that does work properly. If buying a new pressure canner, you will want to consider the merits of one with a weighted gauge or with a dial gauge.

If you are canning foods for which the boiling water bath is recommended, make sure the boiling water canner has a rack in the bottom and a lid. It should also be deep enough for boiling water to cover the tops of the jars by at least one inch, and preferably by two inches.

Older references are no longer recommended, because modern scientific findings prove that methods formerly used are either unsafe or, at best, result in harmless spoilage of food.

Also, the successful canner should not rely on incomplete or inaccurate directions given by people who call in directions and recipes to radio programs, or who pass such poor information to their friends and neighbors.

To produce top quality, good-looking canned foods, choose a variety that cans well. If the food is of top maturity and quality, better canned foods result. Vegetables should be picked just before they are canned, for best results.

Fruits should be carefully sorted, so only those at peak maturity will be canned that day. If you use the hot pack method of packing food in jars, you will also have more attractive canned foods.

Just as you plan your equipment, food and space for canning, you can plan your time and energy for better satisfaction from canning. This would include such things as canning a reasonable amount of food each day, doing the canning early in the day when the kitchen is probably cooler, planning how to use the help of family members in canning, planning simple but nutritious meals on canning day, and arranging the rest of the day's schedule so you are fresh and alert during the canning process.

When you enjoy looking at shelves of colorful, home canned foods, and enjoy serving these delicious foods to your family, the satisfactions and challenges of home canning are great.

So concentrate on carefully following the best directions so you will have the best looking, best tasting, most nutritious foods, with no food spoilage to ruin your success. Even if it means changing the way you do something, it will be well worth it, and home canning will be truly a challenge that provides a great deal of satisfaction.

Federation to observe conservation week

MOUNT PLEASANT — By proclamation of Gov. Milton Shapp, the week of June 23 to June 28 has been declared Pennsylvania Youth Conservation Week.

During this time, the Pennsylvania Federation of Women's Clubs (PFWC) will honor the youth, their organizations and their endeavors in the field of conservation.

The northeast district PFWC Youth Conservation Day observance will be held at 10 a.m., June 25 at the Mount Pleasant Fish Hatchery. Reservations for the all-day outing must be given to Mrs. Howard G. Griggs of Clarks Summit, district YCD chairman, before June 15.

Calendar

Tuesday, June 3

Pocono chapter, NOW, open discussion meeting, 8 p.m., in the First Presbyterian Church annex at 579 Main Street, Stroudsburg. Public invited.

Temple Israel Sisterhood, 8 p.m. at Temple Israel, Wallace Street, Stroudsburg.

Downtown Sciotia Liberty Belles, 8 p.m., Clearview Inn. Permanent officers will be elected.

Wednesday, June 4

First annual picnic, 2 p.m., Fox Wood Farm Campground, sponsored by the Golden Age Club.

Elsie Longaere Rebekah Lodge, 8 p.m. Tannersville hall.

All participants are asked to bring a box lunch. Beverages will be provided by the Wayne County Federation of Women's Clubs.

District Forester Manuel Gordon and Assistant Forester A.D. Santoli will present a demonstration program in the morning.

The theme for the day, which is jointly sponsored by the YCD and the Bureau of Forestry, is "Beautify for '76."

Awards will be presented for the best conservation project submitted by an organized group. A conservation youth award will be presented and a conservation art poster and essay contest will be run on the theme, "How Can I Improve My Community For Its 200th Birthday?" There will be elementary and secondary classifications.

The PFWC president's trophy will be presented to the organized youth group that completes the best beautification project; the award rotates among annual winners. The federated club award recognizes the women's group sponsoring a group.

Cash awards will be presented in the conservation project and federated club categories with the money to be used for conservation projects. Savings bonds will be awarded in the essay, poster and youth award categories.

In addition, a camp scholarship will be awarded to the outstanding youth on the state level.

Wednesday, June 5

Protest by doctors uncertain

EAST STROUDSBURG — Area doctors haven't joined yet with other doctors who are withholding services in Bucks County in the Lehigh Valley.

A hospital spokesman said doctors haven't made a decision yet on what actions they will take, if any, and are planning to meet "soon." An exact meeting time was not revealed.

The spokesman also said it is "likely or probable" that patients from affected areas might come here for treatment.

Presently plans are not being made to handle an additional patient load if it should occur.

Dr. F.A. Lovecchio, hospital chief of staff, refused to comment Monday.

Dr. Harvey Pullen, president of the county medical society, said he couldn't comment because he knew nothing about the doctors' plans.

A hospital spokesman said the number of patients treated at the hospital increases during the summer and over holidays.

A heavy day in winter would have 100 people treated in the emergency room while a heavy summer day may be twice that.

The largest number of patients treated in the emergency room last year was 210 on July 4.

The hospital has 225 beds and can set up 24 cots if they are needed.

Murder trial date delayed pending location decision

STROUDSBURG — A decision on the change of venue requested by a 17-year-old East Stroudsburg youth is not expected before Wednesday, according to Monroe County Dist. Atty. James F. Marsh.

Gregory Powlett of 20 Kiwanis St. was scheduled to go on trial today in connection with the Jan. 24 shooting death of James D. Zane, 57, a Smithfield Township service station owner.

Two other youths, Michael Chase, 18, and Gregg Porter,

Marsh said he will proceed with other cases while awaiting the decision by President Judge Arlington W. Williams.

The request to change the site of the trial was made last week by Powlett's attorney who introduced several newspaper clippings into evidence and asserted that the youth could not receive a fair trial in Monroe County.

According to the court, the trial date will then be determined by the court.

Big destruction takes great care

EAST STROUDSBURG — There's a lot more to building demolition than a big yellow crane, flying brick and splinters.

Monday the Redevelopment Authority of Monroe County had a "coordinating meeting" for everyone involved in its latest demolition project.

Seven buildings in the Courtland Plaza Redevelopment Project No. 1 are scheduled to be torn down beginning June 9. Four more will be demolished later, once legal complications are resolved.

Dignitaries at the coordinating meeting included East Stroudsburg officials — the mayor, borough manager, police chief, sewer and water superintendent, zoning and codes officer — utility company representatives, including Bell of Pa. and Pennsylvania Power and Light.

Earlier the Redevelopment Authority had advertised for bids for a demolition contractor and awarded the contract to low bidder Fred Diminick of Diminick Excavating and Demolition Contractor, Danville.

Also put out for bids was the job of capping water lines and plugging sewer pipes; each house must be disconnected from these lines at the street.

Other lines to be disconnected are the telephone and electric lines. The phone company wanted to remove its equipment from the buildings before they are destroyed.

James Neutts, assistant director of the Redevelopment Authority, noted telephones and cables attract vandals to vacant homes.

Saving trees and shrubs must be coordinated with the shade tree commission. Dust control involves use of the fire hydrants, supervised by the water superintendent.

But despite all the pre-planning and coordination of efforts and schedules, slip-ups can occur. It is up to the demolition contractor to make sure everything really was disconnected.

If he doesn't, an explosion or a fire could occur. Diminick said. That is why he always inspects the buildings before he tells his men to begin.

According to a letter from the architects to the commissioners, the basic fee is based on 5.5 per cent of the estimated construction cost of $3,202,248, amounting to $176,123.

In addition there are $4,536 in reimbursable expenses incurred by the architects while working on the project; a maximum furniture fee of $24,000; and maximum graphics fee of $6,000.

The bill approved for payment Monday covered work done by the architects during April.

In other matters Monday, the commissioners received notice from Joel Keller, civil defense director, that the National Weather Service will install additional stream gauges for flood survey work.

The gauges will be placed in the Brodhead, Cherry and McMichaels creeks to provide the county with a self-help flood gauge protection program and to give accurate stream information to the weather service on a daily basis.

Spotlight on sports —*Kozlosky still hopefulBy JOE DeVIVO
Record Sports Writer

Tom Kozlosky is scheduled to report to the Philadelphia Eagles' summer training camp at Widener College on July 15. When he arrives, he knows his work will be cut out for him.

Kozlosky, who signed a free agent contract with the Eagles after starring at East Stroudsburg State College, is hoping to find a job on the Eagles' linebacking corps.

Right now, the Eagles' linebacking situation looks crowded. There are six returning veterans, two draft picks, an ex-taxi squad member, a converted defensive lineman, and Kozlosky.

That adds up to 11 men vying for seven or eight jobs. It doesn't take a mental giant to figure out several linebackers will be cut, but Kozlosky is confident he can prove he's good enough to play with the pros.

"I think I have just as good a chance as anyone else," Kozlosky said recently. "The only thing I lack is a little size. If I don't get hurt and learn the defenses I think I have a good chance to make it."

Kozlosky already got a brief look at the Eagles' operation during a four-day rookie camp in late April.

The players underwent complete physicals, were tested for strength, watched films, and practiced without pads.

Even though he was in camp for only four days, Kozlosky didn't need long to discover there's a great difference between the collegiate ranks and the pros.

"It was so much quicker," he said. "As a linebacker in college you have a little time to read the play, but there, if you don't immediately read the play, the back is by you."

If Kozlosky makes it in the pros, he'll have to learn a new position and a new defense. At ESSC, his 220-pound frame was adequate enough to enable him to play middle linebacker, but by NFL standards he's better suited for an outside linebacking spot.

Defensively, Kozlosky will have to learn the responsibilities of the 4-3 defense the Eagles plan to use.

Kozlosky believes he can make both adjustments.

"To go from the middle to the outside is easier than from lineman to linebacker," he said. "The responsibilities are different at outside linebacker but a lot of the things are the same."

The 4-3 defense doesn't bother Kozlosky a great deal because he had some experience with it in high school.

If Kozlosky can make it with the Eagles, he'd be the first player from ESSC to stick with the pros. But even if he fails in his attempt to land a job with the Eagles, Kozlosky isn't about to give up football.

"I want to play somewhere," he stated. "I wouldn't quit."

The Eagles' taxi squad, another NFL club, the World Football League, or the Canadian Football League are several possible courses Kozlosky could take if he fails to make the Eagles' roster.

Minor league football is something Kozlosky doesn't even like to think about at this point.

"That would be really tough," he said. "I'm trying to think optimistically and I won't have to do that."

4 jockeys plead innocent to charges of race-fixing

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Four Maryland jockeys and two other men pleaded innocent Monday to a 13-count indictment accusing them of conspiring to fix the ninth race at Bowie Race Course on Valentine's Day.

The jockeys, Eric Walsh, 35, Ben Feliciano, 32, Luigi Gino, 34, and Jessie Davidson, 34, were released on personal recognition pending a jury trial, tentatively scheduled Sept. 4.

Former Maryland star given lengthy contract*McMillen signs pact with NBA Braves

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — Tom McMillen, a former University of Maryland star who was the Buffalo Braves' top selection in the 1974 college draft, signed a multi-year contract with the National Basketball Association club Monday.

Braves owner Paul Snyder, who like McMillen is a native of Mansfield, Pa., announced the signing at a news conference. Terms of the pact were not disclosed.

"Tom brings to us the kind of young man that any team would be proud of," Snyder said of McMillen, who had decided to put off his pro career in order to attend Oxford University on a Rhodes Scholarship.

Snyder was all smiles at the conference and said that coach Jack Ramsay and personnel director Bob MacKinnon feel the 6-11, 220-pound McMillen will fit into the Braves' style of play. Both Ramsay and MacKinnon were in San Francisco Monday attending a league meeting.

"Jack and Bob are convinced that Tom will fill a role on our team," Snyder added.

McMillen, who played on the Bologna team in the Italian League on weekends while attending Oxford, averaged 20.5 points per game and 9.8 rebounds during his career at Maryland.

"I can say so many things," McMillen said, "but basically I'm really glad to be here. My first goal is to give pro ball everything I have."

Snyder and McMillen were acquainted back in Mansfield while McMillen was growing up and playing high school basketball.

"I'm just pleased to be able to come back to the states and play for a man like Mr. Snyder," McMillen said. "Besides being a fantastic associate, I'm impressed that the man (Snyder) is a winner."

McMillen said several weeks ago he received permission to finish his graduate work in the summer sessions.

"Now it's back to Oxford to hit the books for a few weeks," he added.

Knicks charged

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — The Buffalo Braves Monday filed formal charge with the league office against the New York Knicks for "willful violation" of the National Basketball Association constitution for allegedly negotiating with then-Braves General Manager Eddie Donovan.

The formal charge, signed by Buffalo owner Paul L. Snyder, stated that the Knicks negotiated with Donovan to "employ him as general manager although at those times" he was under contract with the Braves.

The charges accuse the Knicks of violating section 35.1 of the NBA constitution.

Kwalick signs three-year contract with WFL Bell

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Ted Kwalick, former All-American at Penn State, Monday signed a three-year contract with the Philadelphia Bell of the World Football League.

Kwalick, a former All-American at Penn State, had signed a contract with Hawaii in the WFL and played out his option with the 49ers last season. But his contract with the Hawaii club was ruled invalid because it was with original owners no longer affiliated with the franchise.

Bell president John Bosacco said the club possibly will add at least two more NFL players of Kwalick's caliber.

Bosacco also said that even though former Washington Redskins' quarterback Sonny Jurgensen announced last week that he was not interested in joining the Bell, they were still negotiating with him. He expects a final answer on Jurgensen within a week.

Kwalick said he joined the Bell "because I found that they are people with integrity. I feel I've only scratched the surface as far as what I think I can accomplish in professional football and also this was an opportunity for me to come and play in Pennsylvania."

Kwalick said he negotiated with the 49ers for a new contract up until last week. He said, "I did talk with the Pittsburgh Steelers and several other NFL clubs but they all have a fear of the Rozelle rule." "The way the league (NFL) holds the Rozelle rule over a player's head when negotiating with him is wrong. Sometimes they don't realize that they are dealing with a man's career."

The ruling by NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle says that when a club signs a player from another club who has played out his option, they must give that club a player of similar caliber or draft choices.

Bell head coach Ron Waller said that with Kwalick's all-around versatility, "I'll be able to employ Ted at any position in the backfield or at any of the three receiver's positions."

Kwalick was the No. 1 draft choice of the 49ers in 1969.

New ownership buys into Hawks

ATLANTA (UPI) — A millionaire Atlanta businessman and his family, who described themselves as "sports nuts," have agreed to purchase the National Basketball Association Atlanta Hawks, it was announced Monday.

The group, headed by Atlanta businessman Simon S. Selig Jr., faces an immediate task of attempting to sign David Thompson of North Carolina State and 7-foot Marvin "the Human Eraser" Webster of Morgan State.

The Hawks chose Thompson and Webster in the first round of last week's NBA draft and the pair are reportedly asking for a combined total of $4 million to sign.

Also included in the new ownership are Selig's wife, and his son, S. Stephen Selig III. Thomas Cousins and John Wilcox, present owners of the Hawks, will continue as minority owners.

Selig said a new president and general manager will be named for the Hawks replacing Wilcox, who will continue to serve as president of the Atlanta Flames of the National Hockey League and of the Omni group which controls Atlanta's 15,000-seat sports facility.

Selig said Cotton Fitzsimmons, who recently signed a

HAPPY WINNER — Raul Ramirez of Mexico happily raises the cup he won Monday when he captured the Italian International Tennis championship Monday by defeating Spain's Manuel Orantes. (UPI)

Ramirez outlasts Orantes for Italian tennis crown

Ramirez, who knocked out defending teen-age champion Bjorn Borg and chased Ilie Nastase to the showers with a sudden acute attack of nerves on his way to the finals, rallied from a cautious, uncertain beginning which left him in trouble to a sharp attack and domination over the Spaniard. The mustachioed Mexican, who polished his game at the University of Southern California and almost single-handedly eliminated the United States from the 1975 Davis Cup, picked up $16,000 for the win on his first championship point in a love game break of Orantes' serve.

"I was a little bit cold at the start and uncertain whether to go to the net or stay back," the Mexican, who turns 22 in two weeks, said.

"I wasn't passing from the back so I decided to charge the net and then things began to improve," Ramirez said.

"At 3-0 in the third set I realized I was only three games away from winning and started to back again. Manuel was playing well and at the end I had to attack again to win."

"I usually run to the net and pray," Ramirez said with a smile. "Today it all went well."

Orantes was asked what he considered to be Ramirez's best shot.

"His service," the Spaniard said without hesitation. "Also the fact he doesn't make mistakes."

After taking a 4-1 lead in the opening set, Orantes had trouble mounting an attack. He had kept Ramirez off balance and pinned to the base line but Manuel began to charge the net in the sixth game and broke Orantes' serve in the seventh to set up the tie break when each player served out to 6-6.

On the eighth point in the tie break, Ramirez attacked on Orantes' serves and won both points. He took the set, seven points to three, on a passing shot at the net on his own service.

questions and answers

Q. I'll be 65 in a few months. I've never worked under social security, but I've heard that I can buy Medicare's hospital insurance through monthly premiums. Is this true?

A. Yes. People 65 or older who aren't eligible for hospital insurance coverage on their own work record or their spouse's can buy the protection. You will have to pay a monthly hospital insurance premium, and will also have to enroll in Medicare's medical insurance and pay the premium for it. The basic premium for hospital insurance is $40 a month starting July 1, 1975. The premium for medical insurance is $6.70 a month.

Q. I've been getting monthly social security benefits on my father's record, and I started college last fall. Will my payments stop during summer vacation?

A. You can continue to get social security payments during your vacation provided that it is not more than four months. But you must have been a full-time student before the vacation period, you must plan to continue full-time after the vacation, and you must remain unmarried.

Q. I get social security payments as a student. Starting this month, I'll be working full-time until summer vacation is over. How will my earnings affect my payments?

A. If you earn $2,520 or less for the year, your benefits won't be affected. If you earn more, your payments will be reduced $1 for each $2 over $2,520. But, regardless of your total 1975 earnings, you can get full social security payment for any month in which you neither earn over $210 nor do substantial work in your own business.

Q. I am going to apply for supplemental security income. My son, who is 16, is blind. Would he be eligible for payments, too?

A. He may be. Supplemental security income payments can be made to a blind or disabled child, or to someone on a child's behalf. The child should apply for payments, or if he is unable to do so, you should apply on his behalf.

Q. My sister and brother-in-law have a disabled son. If he applies for supplemental security income, how will their income and resources affect his eligibility?

A. If he is under 18, or under 21 and a student, and he lives with his parents, their income and resources will be considered in determining his eligibility and payment amount. If he is over 18 and not a student or over 21 whether or not a student — only his own income and resources count in determining his eligibility for supplemental security income.

INVITATION TO BID
1. Sealed Proposals will be received by the Wallenpaupack Area School District, located in the Wallenpaupack Junior-Senior High School, located in Palmyra Township, Pike County, Pennsylvania, on June 2, Hawley, 1975 at 10:00 A.M. until 12:00 P.M. All bids and proposals will be publicly opened and read aloud.

2. Separate bids will be required on a lump sum basis for each of the following segregated parts of the project:

Contract No. 7539.1 — General Construction (GC)

Contract No. 7539.2 — Plumbing Construction (PC)

Contract No. 7539.3 — Heating and Air Conditioning (HAC)

Contract No. 7539.4 — Electrical Construction (EC)

3. Copies of the Contract Documents may be obtained by written request to the Architects, RKR-HESS ASSOCIATES, INC., 304 Park Avenue, Stroudsburg, Pennsylvania, 18301. The documents will be sent to the office of said Architects as well as the following Builders' Exchange Offices: F.W. Dodge Corporation; and General Contractors Association of the Lehigh Valley, Inc. and the Northeastern Builders' Exchange.

4. Copies of the Contract Documents will be made available to prime bidders, direct and only upon receipt of deposit in the following amounts:

General Construction (GC) $50.00

Plumbing Construction (PC) $25.00

Heating and Air Conditioning (HAC) $25.00

Electrical Construction (EC) $25.00

These deposits shall apply to each copy of the Contract Documents received by the Bidder. Bidders upon returning, in both conditions, the documents received by them, within fifteen (15) days following date on which bids were received, will have the full deposit on the first two copies refunded to them. Any additional copies above as above will be refunded 50 percent of their deposit on the first two copies of Contract Documents, otherwise, full deposit will be forfeited.
